A Burning Obsession Donald Mosher

Hannah is a naïve, somewhat gullible young lady who is looking for her place in life. After saving the life of an elderly customer at work, she is told by a fire captain that the City of Vinedale is looking for minority applicants. She applies and is accepted. Armed only with a sweet disposition and a perchance toward pleasing others, she is ill equipped to succeed in a macho environment. Her roommate, Johanne, a perky and feisty optimist, guides her in slyly overcoming her problems. Hannahs 28 year old captain, a proclaimed bachelor, slowly and begrudgingly accepts her. Eventually he becomes more than just her captain. As the novel reaches its climax, Hannah saves the life of her engineer by making a life and death decision that almost costs her to lose her own.
