Excerpt from Crustula Juris: Being a Collection, of Leading Cases on Contract, Done Into Verse

The following collection of rhymes will be read, if at all, for the most part by lawyers and students of the law though perhaps not so intended it will serve some desirable ends.

First It will assist in familiarizing the legal profession with the use of slang. Slang has, after a more or less lengthy career, now definitely established itself as the language of polite society. The legal profession as a whole can scarcely be said to have kept pace with the times in its accomplished use. Indeed it is not unusual in our Courts to still hear cases conducted and argued by leading counsel without in any marked degree resorting to it. Old Latin phrases occasionally break the monotonous use of old-fashioned English in our legal proceedings but many a practitioner to-day, while he may perhaps know the meaning of Magna Charta or Habeas Corpus, would he hopelessly at sea if he were asked to "beat it" or "come across" or to declare the number of "scads" involved in the case at issue. While, of course, not pretending to be exhaustive, the following lines will tend to enrich the ordinary lawyer's vocabulary of slang and bring him more in touch with a clientele of the higher sort.

Second The Psalms of David and some other portions of Holy Scripture have been put in a new form rendering them easier to chant or sing than the original King James' version.
