Aaron Adams believes he has seen the future. He is a cryopreservation scientist, and has dreamed of his soul-mate, Miranda May, ever since he was a little boy. He is so convinced that she will exist in his foreseen time that he does the unthinkable... he freezes himself in the facility where he is employed. 33 years, later, Sam LeBlanc knocks on the door of Miranda May and hands her a book. A book written by his best friend, Aaron Adams. In the book, Aaron begs her to be thawed out on a specific date... using the billions and billions of dollars that his estate has accumulated since his 'death'. Had he really seen the future? The future that saw the two of them, together? Miranda thinks maybe he had, because she remembers him from her childhood... a childhood where she had an 'imaginary' friend named Aaron.
