Stop War America: A Marine's Story Robert McLane

This is not a story about a Poster Marine; The author takes you on a journey from a summer of love in San Francisco, with sex, drugs, and rock and roll, to 13 months in Vietnam during the bloodiest year of the war. During the war he served with a Marine artillery unit, where he did firing support for Marine and Army units engaged in deadly combat against hard-core North Vietnamese units along the DMZ. He returned home completely disillusioned and mentally wounded. After the war he and a group of others founded the Vietnam Veterans Against the War. He hilariously tells what it really is like to be in a Veterans Hospital psychiatric lock-up ward where he was given massive doses of unwanted and harmful drugs. Despite the tragedies of his tortured life, his story is done with raw humor, wit, and sarcasm.
